

Council Members Danny Dromm, Julissa Ferreras-Copeland, Peter Koo and Project Reach

to host

Queens-wide Anti-Discrimination Clinics

Monday, June 13, 2016
9am-4pm

Flushing Library
41-17 Main St
Flushing, NY 11355

This 6-hour Anti-Discrimination Clinic will bring together 30-40 educators, service providers and professionals from schools and community organizations servicing young people and families throughout Queens.

A parallel Anti-Discrimination Clinic for young people will take place on Monday June 20th at the Flushing Library, 41-17 Main St, Flushing, NY 11355.

Council Members Dromm, Ferreras-Copeland, Koo and Project Reach seek to establish community and school-based Intergenerational Anti-Discrimination Teams of young people and adults in Queens, trained to address bullying, bias and discrimination.

Drawing from 35 years of anti-discrimination and social justice training, Project Reach will offer a unique opportunity to individuals, organizations and schools to experience its most successful and impactful workshops.

All people who are committed to ending discrimination and fighting for social justice are encouraged to attend.

To register/apply go to: <http://bit.ly/QnClinic2016> or www.projectreachnyc.org

For more information, please email
donkao@projectreachnyc.org or katherine@projectreachnyc.org or

Call Don - (917) 749-6116 or Katherine – (315) 664-8059